Global Paint for Charity
Is your way to change lives, and protect the environment.

As a non-profit organization, we don’t sell our donated paint. We recover the left-over and unwanted paint from homeowners and paint industries. Then we process it, package it and work with distribution partners and NGOs to ship and distribute gallons of paint to vulnerable populations worldwide.

Our objectives are clear.
Change lives of individuals and families, transform communities and change the world.
Save and protect the environment.
Reduce waste generated by homeowners and paint industries.
Reduce deforestation and soil exhaustion in impoverished countries around the world.
Improve access of helpless populations worldwide.
Save the U.S. Government, and ultimately taxpayers, over $1 million annually in managing the elimination of unwanted paint.
Create a sustainable business model that provides long-term benefits, resources and positive spirits.

This organization is seeking any methods appropriate for its particular scale of operations. 100% of all donations will constitute directly to the collection, processing and distribution of paint. All contributions are tax deductible. A gift of any kind will help us change lives by providing paint to vulnerable individuals and families.
For the world’s poor, home isn’t just where the heart is. It’s an incubator for disease.

The United Nations Human Settlements Program estimates that more than 1 billion rural residents and 600 million urban residents live in overcrowded housing with dirt walls and roofs of poor quality materials, lack of sanitation and no garbage collection. Dirt walls and poor roofs turn to mud in the rainy season, putting those who cannot afford paint and household cleaning supplies at the greatest risk of life-threatening and infectious disease.

Global Paint for Charity can be an even stronger force for improving our global quality of life with your help.

As an individual, create a fun and exciting way to recycle unwanted paint. Organize a paint recycling event in schools throughout your state and across the country. Or simply do it within other organizations and institutions, such as churches, social groups, homeowner associations or your own community schools or volunteer organizations.

As a paint retailer or manufacturer, donate your unwanted, wrongly colored or leftover paint. We’ll do the rest.

In the U.S., home is also where the pollution starts.

Check your basement and garage. Chances are, you’re one of over 200 million homeowners in the U.S. with 3 to 4 gallons of leftover paint stored there. Sadly, 10% of that paint ends up in landfills, where it seeps into the earth and has the ability to pollute up to 250,000 gallons of drinking water.

You can help.
